

IFOP Photos

Festivals

"Loved" Director at COL COA

by indieWIRE (April 21, 2009)

Crowds lined up around the block at the DGA theatre in Los Angeles on Monday for the opening night of COL COA (City of Lights, City of Angels), which offers a weeklong celebration of the newest in French cinema. Zabou Breitman, the director of "Screens I Loved" (Je l'aimais), was on hand for the world premiere, with filmmaker Michael Mann introducing the film to a packed house.

"Loved" is about a man who consoles his daughter-in-law after her husband leaves her by reflecting on another woman he once fell in love with. The film will be released in France May 5 and stars Daniel Auteuil and Milla-Joe Young. Photo and caption by Jeff Israel.

149 OF 152 IMAGES

